

Press Release

For immediate release (Longmont, Colorado 01/01/2004): State of The Art High Precision Machining Company Launches to Serve the Needs of Aerospace and Defense Companies.

When clients from aerospace, defense or the weapons industry contact Sangat Precision Machining & Grinding for prototype or production runs of metal parts needing tight tolerances, they receive the full benefit of a well thought out, tested and streamlined process. Working with clients to establish long-term relationships assures that clients get consistent service that always satisfies requirements and often exceeds expectations.

To streamline the process for purchasing officers, management sought for and received qualified vendor status as an ISO 9001:2000 Certified Provider. Sangat Precision uses applications that meet recognized standards for exchanging financial and design data with clients making the contracting, purchasing, and payment process precise, accurate, and consistent.

Sangat Precision Machining & Grinding is a Longmont Colorado-based precision manufacturing company.
